

GERMANY VS. POLAND

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

(Copyright by McClure Syndicate)

However exaggerated the current reports of German military operations against Poland may be, it is necessary to recognize that such operations must now be expected. The unmistakable fact is that the Germans of German territory to Poland are things that cannot be accepted by any German.

now and it is hard to believe that future generations will remember of the new map made at Versailles, which undoes all German achievement in the east in more than a century and a half. As it stands the Germans have evacuated the province of Posen under Allied pressure, thus abandoning a fertile region, one of the best agricultural districts of the Empire, to the Poles. This territory has an area twice as great as Alsace-Lorraine and a population of about 2,000,000 but it is not from the German point of view the most important sacrifice demanded; in addition the terms of peace require that she should abandon to the Poles almost all of West Prussia, with an area and population equal to Posen, consent to the erection of a free city of Danzig, joined in many ways to Poland and absolutely separated from Germany.

In addition consent to plebiscites in portions of East Prussia and in all of Upper Silesia. Ceding West Prussia to Poland, surrendering Danzig, risking the loss of part of East Prussia by plebiscite, these are for the Germans terrible sacrifices. The first two isolate the German-speaking regions about Koenigsberg from the main mass of German-speaking people; they literally cut Prussia in two, they not merely take away twenty odd thousand square miles of territory and up wards of four millions of people but they break down Prussia itself. Thus mutilated Prussia, the very heart of the German spirit, which from the war to the last battle of the present war, dominated the German Empire becomes an amorphous thing, the reactionary, military, Junk section either put in situ or cut off from the rest of Germany.

For the German there is no salience in the fact that Danzig does not go unconditionally or absolutely to Poland, and, he knows, almost all place that grip upon Poland which he has had with the exception of a brief Napoleonic interlude, for nearly a century and a half. Politically this is a far more terrible blow than the loss of Alsace-Lorraine or the possible permanent surrender of the Saar district. It is something more than a loss of a tenth of the area of the country. It is even more than the actual cutting of his country in half. It is the erection of a new state, a new state, destined if it has time and the support of the Western Powers, permanently to block his pathway of expansion on the east, and the permanent surrender to a race he regards with something of the point of view we have toward the Mexicans, not alone of territory essential to Germany, but of territory in which a German population, a minority to be sure, lives. As for Upper Silesia, if this, by the vote of the people who are in the great majority Polish, shall choose to join Poland, also, out of the great (Continued on Page Eight)

Allies Approve Plan For Attack On Petrograd

PARIS, Monday, July 7.—Approval of a plan for a concerted attack upon Petrograd by Finnish troops and the forces of the Kolchak government at dusk was given today by the council of five.

A joint note has been sent the military authorities of the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy at Belgrade, instructing them to support the Finnish government if it decided to accede to the request of Admiral Kolchak to assist him in the campaign.

There is no indication that the allied and associated powers propose to go further at this time in helping Kolchak's plan but their action in supporting the Finns is regarded as equivalent to assurances that they will see the Kolchak movement carried through.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—Diplomatic information that the Bolshevik authorities are planning to evacuate Petrograd has been received in official circles here. Decision to quit the capital was said to have been already expressed by some elements of the government.

HELSINKI, Sunday, July 6.—It is reported that all foreign embassies and consulates in Petrograd have been occupied by Bolshevik troops. The archives have been seized, it is said, and those in charge have been arrested and handed over to an extraordinary commission dealing with charges of espionage against the Soviet government.

OFFICIALS HAD A RIGHT TO REFUSE HALL

COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—By reversing the common pleas and appellate courts of Allen county, the state supreme court today held in substance that the county commissioners of Allen county were acting within their rights when they refused the use of Memorial Hall at Lima for a Socialist meeting, which was to be addressed by Eugene Debs. The lower courts held that the county commissioners had no discretion in allowing the use of the hall for public meetings. The Debs' meeting was to have been held on January 22, 1919.

DIRIGIBLE'S RETURN DELAYED BY ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 8.—The start of the return trans-Atlantic cruise of the British dirigible R-34 was today deferred from early tomorrow morning, the hour which had been fixed for her departure, for at least fifteen and possibly 24 hours.

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 8.—The enforced stay of the giant British dirigible R-34 made necessary by unfavorable weather reports covering the next 48 hours and repairs to her motors, brought hundreds of visitors to Roosevelt Field today. The big airship will not take off on her return trip across the Atlantic ocean until after dawn tomorrow. In making the announcement, concerning the return cruise, Brigadier General E. M. Maitland, special representative of the British air ministry aboard the dirigible, positively declared that the R-34 would start tomorrow morning, "wind or no wind" although he hoped that weather conditions would be favorable.

Unless present plans are changed, the R-34 will sail over New York and then make directly out to sea, probably over a course slightly north of the southern route if conditions are favorable.

On its homeward journey, the R-34 will carry twenty-five pounds of mail. About one hundred official letters have been received by the New York post office from officials in the country, congratulating British officials on the success of the trip. About two hundred letters had been received yesterday from newspapers and private individuals marked for transmission to England by the dirigible. These were all put in the mail bag of the R-34. The postage on each letter was two cents, the regular rate.

REACH TACIT AGREEMENT TO TRY WILLIAM IN LONDON

PARIS, July 7.—The agreement reached by the allied council that the trial of former Emperor William would be held in London, as announced by Premier Lloyd George in the house of commons last week, was a tacit one but from American sources, it was learned late today that the agreement was regarded as binding.

What purports to be an authentic account of the incident in the council upon which the British premier based his statement, has become available from a usually reliable source.

It is stated that at a meeting of the council last week, the British premier said to his fellow conferees something about as follows: "I suppose you have no objection to the trial of the Kaiser in London?" The premier looked around the circle, the account continues, and no one objected. Indeed, it is said, Premier Clemenceau gave his verbal approval.

This tacit agreement was never recorded in writing and Sir Maurice Hankey, the British secretary, did not include it in his regular report of the proceedings in the council. The assumption is, however, it was added, that Premier Lloyd George later had unofficial conversations on the subject with one or more members of the council.

TO TAKE UP PROHIBITION LEGISLATION AT ONCE

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—By a vote of 235 to 59, the house today adopted a resolution providing for immediate consideration of prohibition enforcement legislation as recommended by the judiciary committee and limiting general debate to twelve hours.

House leaders expect that a vote on the bill will be reached either Friday or Saturday after a bitter fight. General debate probably will end Thursday and then the measure will be taken up for amendment.

There was every indication that opponents of prohibition would exhaust every effort to delay passage of the measure.

ROME, July 7.—(Monday)—About a dozen men, mostly French colonial soldiers, were killed at Fiume during the recent disorders, three in which allied forces and Italians participated.

ESCORTED INTO PORT BY LARGE FLEET OF AMERICAN WARSHIPS

NEW YORK, July 8.—President Wilson stepped from the gang plank of the transport George Washington which brought him home from France, upon American soil on the Hamburg-American line pier at Hoboken at 2:57 p. m. today. He was preceded by Mrs. Wilson and Miss Margaret Wilson who crossed with him, as well as by his two other daughters, who had rushed aboard the ship to greet him.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Escorted by a fleet of warships, the transport George Washington bringing President Wilson home from France, passed quarantine and moved on to New York harbor at 1:30 p. m. today.

As the transport passed Fort Hancock, the guns boomed a great presidential salute that echoed ten minutes later by Fort Hamilton and Fort Wadsworth. The shrill whistles of harbor craft took up the din.

The president and Mrs. Wilson stood on the bridge of the George Washington as the vessel steamed slowly up the harbor to her pier at Hoboken, consoled by destroyers and welcoming craft of all descriptions. The rolls of the transport were lined with returning soldiers cheering and waving their caps.

The battleship Pennsylvania, bearing five members of the president's cabinet—Daniels, Baker, Lane, Glass and Wilson—led the way, followed by the Oklahoma with the George Washington at her stern.

The president's flag was flying at the foremast of the George Washington. Except for the wide lane through which the transport passed, the harbor seemed literally filled with small craft of every kind carrying excursionists who shouted and waved a welcome to Mr. Wilson. A great crowd of well-wishers also had assembled on the Staten Island shore and the New Jersey side.

As the George Washington and the escorting fleet of destroyers passed Sandy Hook, the president's salute was fired by the guns on shore.

The presidential ship is under the escort of two battleships, 38 destroyers, one mine sweeper and one dirigible balloon. Four of the destroyers sailed from Brest with the president.

The George Washington loomed along the harbor waiting for high tide before she swung into the Hamburg-American line pier at Hoboken. This precaution was considered advisable because the huge steamer Leviathan occupied the adjoining pier and her stern extends into the river.

The George Washington turned into her pier at 2:50 p. m. while the warships in her escort fired a presidential salute.

As the transport swung into the pier, the president seemed to recognize his daughters, Mrs. W. G. McClellan and Mrs. Francis Sayre, who were leaning far out of an upper story window in the higher buildings. In recognition of the salutes of the assembled warships, the George Washington broke out hundreds of signal flags and was a blaze of color when she docked.

On the pier to meet Mr. Wilson was Vice President Marshall, members of his cabinet and scores of prominent government officials.

An army band stationed on the end of the pier played "The Star Spangled Banner" as the ship swung in. When the George Washington was made fast and the signal was given by her master, Captain Edward Mc-

EFFORTS OF LABOR PARTY FAIL; BILL BECOMES LAW

COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—The bill for a referendum on the measure and the labor party, enacted by the General Assembly over the disapproval of Governor James M. Cox, became effective last night. The measure makes appointments to membership on the Industrial Commission subject to confirmation by the Senate and was attacked by labor on the ground that in reality it was a covert attack on the Ohio workmen's compensation law.

The fact that the bill becomes law tells the story of the failure of the Ohio State Federation of Labor to obtain the necessary number of signatures required to order a referendum on the measure. It would have required 57,000 names.

No statement was made at the State Federation headquarters as to the failure, which was acknowledged frankly late today.

The bill was the cause of a bitter partisan dispute, the Democrats taking the labor side of the controversy, while three Republican members of the General Assembly refused to be bound by the caucus decree that it should be passed.

Republicans Defeat Labor
Unique in state politics is the fact that at the time the Republican organization defied the labor leaders to seek a referendum on the measure and has won a victory.

Analysis of the situation is said to indicate that two forces accomplished the result. The first was the indifference of many labor organizations to the outcome as to the act, and the second was the skillful interference on the part of a minority of the leaders of the labor organizations who are attached to Republican political influence.

A third factor in the equation was the failure of the Democratic state organization to give effective aid. Although Chairman W. W. Durbin of the State Central Committee, sent out urgent letters, the Democratic workers did not respond to the call and allowed the time to elapse without taking action.

The defeat may be regarded to be a defeat with little palliation, both for the labor organizations and the Ohio Democratic organization. The result is said to indicate a weakness in fighting field strength, which is a surprise to the political world.

Over a thousand signatures were secured for the referendum petitions in Belmont county.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO MEET WILSON

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Arrangements were completed today for the appearance of President Wilson before the senate Thursday to present in open session the treaty with Germany.

In response to an official notification of the president's desire, the senate adopted a special order for appointment of a committee of five to express the senate's willingness to comply. The order was offered by Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee and was adopted unanimously.

President Pro-Tempe Cummins, appointed as members of the committee Senators Lodge, Borah, Idaho, and McCumber, North Dakota, Republicans, and Hitchcock, Nebraska and Williams, Mississippi, Democrats. They also were directed to receive the president on his arrival at the capitol Thursday.

Three of those named on the committee are supporters of the league covenant, while Senators Lodge and Borah have been leaders of the opposition.

Senator Lodge said today he expected the entire senate debate on the treaty to be in open session. That also is the expectation of administration leaders, although a small group is said to favor executive consideration.

There also is some sentiment for open sessions of the foreign relations committee in the event the committee invite members of the peace delegation to appear before it. But after discussion today by the leaders, it was said most, if not all of the committee's session would be executive.

According to prominent Republicans President Wilson will not be invited before the committee, but Secretary Lansing and others of the American missions probably will be called. If any information from the president is deemed necessary it was said, a request will be made formally by the senate and not by the committee.

Senator Sherman, Republican, of Illinois, introduced a resolution asking the president by what authority he had undertaken to impose upon the people of this country and to make its government subject to "the League of Nations."

Under the rules the measure went over without action.

CENTRAL RIVERWAY MEANS MUCH TO YOU; FILL TONNAGE BLANK AND HELP IT ALONG

The great advantage of the Central Riverway to connect the Ohio river and the Great Lakes over other proposed routes is seen when the movement of coal from West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky fields to Lake Erie, and ore from the lakes to the Ohio river is considered.

Concerning this important question the booklet issued by the men promoting this project, says:

Over the Miami and Erie route, coal must be lowered 57 feet from Seneca to Cincinnati; lifted 490 feet to summit level, and lowered again 367 feet to the lake.

The total rise and fall resulting is 923 feet in a distance of 304 miles.

One south bound would reverse the operation. Thus the round trip for loads and empties produces a total rise and fall of 1,840 feet in a distance of 508 miles.

Via the Central Riverway the same coal would drop 15 feet to Portsmouth; would be lifted 107 feet to the summit level, and lowered 237 feet to the lake, with the reverse for ore. Here the total rise and fall is 793 feet over a distance of 238 miles, producing for the round trip a total rise and fall of 1,478 feet in a distance of 476 miles.

Notice The Result

For the movement of that vast tonnage of coal and ore the Central Riverway distance is 232 miles shorter with 368 feet less rise and fall, per round trip.

Concerning advantages to Portsmouth, the booklet says:

When barges, proceeding north with coal to lake ports, return, they could bring iron ore and limestone south at cheaper cost than is possible by rail. The Central Riverway would tap three lakes at which iron ore is received—Huron, Sandusky and Toledo. No other waterway between Ohio river and the Great Lakes has such lake terminal possibilities as the Central Route.

In addition, and in contrast to all other routes across the state, the Central Riverway lies in a limestone gorge for 30 miles from Columbus north. In this region are the greatest limestone deposits in Ohio, available for shipment south to all Ohio river points.

Carving and fire brick and similar heavy wares could be shipped directly by water without transshipment from Portsmouth to Toledo, Detroit and other points north which are destitute of clayware raw materials and plants.

If you ship or receive freight and are alive to your own best interests, get in touch at once with Alan N. Jordan, president of the Portsmouth Board of Trade, and secure a literature blank, fill it out and file it so the government can get an estimate of the probable business that the canal will carry. That is the way you can do your part. Get busy.

PRESIDENT BACK IN AMERICA

acknowledgment of the cheers which greeted him.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Four dreadnaughts and 38 destroyers from the Atlantic fleet formed the escort that met the U. S. naval transport George Washington, with President Wilson aboard, thirty miles east of Sandy Hook, early today. The presidential salute from these vessels was the first of the many welcoming ceremonies awaiting the president on his arrival here this afternoon.

In the harbor were forty-five warships, headed by the flagship Pennsylvania with Admiral Henry R. Wilson aboard, assigned to join the outer harbor escorts. Vice-President Marshall and members of the cabinet were assigned to the Pennsylvania while the city's officials welcoming party, headed by Mayor Hylan, and Governor Smith, were passengers aboard the municipal steamers Petrol and Correction.

Among the destroyers in the escort to meet the George Washington were the Wilkes, Rowan, Kimberly, O'Brien, Nicholson, Winslow, Egleston, Wadsworth and Porter, all of which were in the United States destroyer escort of twenty-four destroyers for the transport on December 13, last, from Queenstown when the president made his first trip to France.

1100 POLICE ON DUTY

On duty for the president's arrival were eleven hundred police from the Jersey City and Hoboken forces and several thousand school children were formed in River street to greet the president with "the star spangled banner" as he leaves the George Washington to embark for Manhattan on a special ferry boat. Hoboken is a mass of flags in honor of the president's return.

Immediately after the welcoming exercises in Carnegie Hall, President Wilson will go to the Pennsylvania station to take a special train for Washington.

The police arrangements for safeguarding President Wilson during his two hours stay in New York are the most elaborate ever planned for the safety of a chief executive. Police Commissioner Enright is in personal command of the men.

COMBERS IS WELCOMING PARTY

Samuel Combers, president of the American Federation of Labor, headed a delegation of twenty-five prominent labor leaders from Central and South American countries, who went down the bay on a city ferry boat to aid in welcoming the president.

The South American labor leaders are in this city attending a conference of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, which opened yesterday. Another ferry boat carried 1,000 residents of Staten Island and a large number of relatives and friends of the soldiers returning on the George Washington. All the vessels of the welcoming fleet were richly decorated with bunting from stem to stern.

The streets along which the president is to pass on his way to Carnegie Hall, also are decorated. The great business houses on Fifth Avenue are draped with flags and the stars and stripes are flying from hundreds of mainheads. More than 3,000 policemen lined the route.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A law suit, in which there were fifty defendants was filed in common pleas court. The plaintiff was represented by Attorneys Seale and Miller.

The city then had a fraternal order known as "The Seven Wise Men."

An old-fashioned camp meeting was held in Warner's Grove on Kline's Lane, by members of the Findlay Street M. E. church.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. gave a lawn fete in the court house yard.

John Blankenmeyer, of Hanging Rock, came to this city and engaged in manufacturing fertilizers and also opened up a feed store.

The second anniversary of the dedication of Manly Chapel M. E. church was observed with appropriate exercises at the church. Rev. B. L. McIlroy, pastor of Bladwell church, officiated.

W. J. D. Cooper, of this city, made an interesting trip over the country with a horse and buggy going from Portsmouth to Rochester, N. Y., in two weeks.

Ray McIlhenny and Al Evans, local enthusiastic cyclists, started on a trip to Lucasville. Everything was going until a wicked little nail sticking in a board on the Lucasville bridge, which Evans did not see, punctured his front tire of his wheel with a wheel, causing the fire to collapse and Evans was stranded.

At eleven o'clock last night a young girl who at that time should have been calling good night to her mother in the safe haven of "Home" slipped on the flood wall. Who is at fault?

Mother who every evening awaits her daughter, who works at night, and arm and arm they go home together.

The Markets

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 8.—An uncertain market followed yesterday's late money flurry. Several of the more prominent speculative issues reacted fractionally but this was more than balanced by strength in other quarters. Stocks rose five points and reached three, but falls of the investment group were strong under the heading's lead. Heavy buying of Pan-American Petroleum and Mexican Petroleum at 2 to 3 point gains strengthened the list before the end of the first half-hour.

Headings reflected a more confident tone during the morning, traders evidently disregarding adverse money conditions. Petroleum continued to feature the advance. Pan-American and Mexican extending their gains to about four points each. Local utilities strengthened on the proposed two-cent transfer. Rails also moved forward, especially low priced shares, such as Missouri Pacific, St. Louis and San Francisco, and Pere Marquette. Various heavy industrials improved one to three points and U. S. Steel held firm. Call money opened at 9 to 10 percent.

Trading in the stock market today was again restrained by tight money but various speculative issues made material gains. Sales approximated 1,500,000 shares.

The closing was irregular.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 8.—Corn displayed fresh strength today and for September delivery reached the highest price yet this season. Opening price, which ranged from 4½c off to 1c up with September 1.80 to 1.85½ and December 1.61½ to 1.61¾, were followed by a temporary sag and then by moderate gains all around.

The close was nervous, ½c to ¼c net higher, with September 1.82½ to 1.85½ and December 1.61½ to 1.61¾.

Oats were steady by the firmness of corn. After opening, ½c to ¾c higher, including September 71½ to 71¾, the oats market fell back a little but soon hardened again.

Provisions were easier owing to lack of buying orders. The bulk of trade was in lard.

Flour took place later as a result of the optimism in the corn and hog markets.

BOOST PORTSMOUTH

Never in the history of America has the demand for homes been so persistent as it is today.

With the restoration of peace conditions new industries are springing up all over the country and old industries are looking around for room in which to expand.

The towns that are to receive the benefit of the prosperous times that are coming must be in a position to accommodate an enormous influx of workers, for without adequate homes for its people a town cannot prosper and grow.

The Portsmouth Real Estate Company has been formed with the primary object of erecting a large number of houses in this vicinity.

Building will commence immediately, and as the demand for homes is so great and the market so poorly supplied, the money invested will show substantial returns in a few months.

Remember, there is no safer investment than real estate. Banks, Trust Companies and Building and Loan Societies will lend more money on real estate than on any other security.

Put your money in the safest investment in the world and at the same time help boost and build up your home town.

THE STOCK OF THIS COMPANY IS NOW BEING OFFERED AT $25.00 PER SHARE. DIVIDENDS WILL BE PAID SEMI-ANNUALLY, THE FIRST DIVIDEND BEING DUE DECEMBER 31st, 1919.

Application blanks may be obtained at the head office, Turley building, or will be mailed on request. Payments for stock may be made in full or 25 per cent. with application and balance at the rate of 25 per cent per month.

This Actually Removes

Superfluous Hair Roots
 Entirely New and Instantaneous Method

By the introduction in this country of what is known as the "electrolytic" process, any woman can now rid herself completely of annoying superfluous hair on face. The process is entirely new, different from all others, and far better because it actually removes the roots, as well as the surface hair. It is instantaneous, perfectly harmless, odorless and painless.

Just get a stick of electrolytic from your favorite dealer, follow the simple directions and see the hair roots come out, with your own eyes. No depilatory or electrolytic treatment can produce this result. The hair is left soft, smooth and healthy as a child's. Electrolytic can be used with absolute safety—one could even eat it with impunity.

soldier, was taken into custody and brought to the county jail today on a lunacy warrant issued from the probate court on a complaint filed by his sister, Mrs. Mary Luther, of Lakeside, New Boston, with whom he resided.

Pemberton was badly beaten up by two men named Rollins in a fight at New Boston a few weeks ago and it is believed that the wounds he received on his head in the encounter may have something to do with his present mental condition. The man had been acting strange for several days and was violent at times, which led relatives to make complaint to the authorities.

Petition Dismissed

After hearing the testimony in the divorce suit of Frank Goltz, dragman, against Katie Frank Goltz in common pleas court today, Judge Thomas ordered the plaintiff's petition dismissed without prejudice, on the ground that the evidence did not substantiate the charge of neglect, as alleged.

Goltz told the court that three weeks after their marriage, on Oct. 18, 1914, the defendant suddenly picked up bag and baggage and left. Goltz, in answer to a question from the court, said that he had been twice previously divorced. He was represented by Attorney T. C. Beatty.

LONG IS SMART FOR COUNTRY WEAR

Purple and white checked gingham makes this snappy little coat dress. A collar and gilet of crisp organdy and the narrowest of black leather belts are attractive features of it. Gingham frocks are having great vogue this summer, especially for country wear. A frock like this, however, is quite suitable for town wear.

KNEW WILLARD WHEN HE WAS A BOY

Accounts of the Willard-Dempsey fight were read with more than usual interest at the McIntyre Chalmers street, belonging to T. C. McConnell as Mr. and Mrs. McConnell had lived near the childhood home of Jess Willard, near Holton, Kansas. They recall an ordinary little chap undistinguished from the other boys when he was small, but developing into a young man with extraordinary physique. In the earlier days of his public career Willard owned a circus where his feats of strength attracted a great deal of attention.

McConnell was a close friend of Willard's stepfather and was entertained at the Willard home.

Woman Threatens Suit Against Druggist Because He Sold Her

Substitute For Nuxated Iron

Case Is Brought To Attention of Physicians Who Warn Public

Say That Metallic Iron Preparation Cannot Possibly Give The Same Strength, Power and Endurance

As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—Which the threat to sue her druggist because he sold her a substitute for genuine Nuxated Iron, the (real) strength and blood builder, one woman has seen in a letter of indignation over the country against a practice which offers such positive dangers to the health and welfare of the public. This woman claims that instead of obtaining increased strength and improved health as she had with the true Nuxated Iron, she was seriously upset and in fact became ill as a result of using the substitute. Such instances as these have led physicians mentioned below to emphasize the health of officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron. Those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder should go to their family doctor and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then they should be sure to look on the label and see that the words NUXATED IRON are printed thereon.

There are thousands of people taking Nuxated Iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron and such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can walk or how long you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained. The widespread publication of the above information has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. Frederick Kings, New York physician and Medical Officer; Dr. George H. Baker, formerly physician and surgeon of Minnesota Memorial Hospital of New Jersey; Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner and others to whom the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the organic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not irritate the stomach, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacture of genuine Nuxated Iron is a carefully supervised process and is successful and entirely satisfactory. Refuse to buy any other iron preparation unless it is Nuxated Iron. If you will refund your money. It is prepared in this city by Fisher & Steich and all other druggists.

While the Landlord Grows Fat—You Grow Thin

Paying rent is like dumping your money in the storm sewer—swept away from you and lost forever so far as you are concerned. The landlord, of course, waxes fat in the meantime—grows corpulent off your earnings. No one can blame the landlord—it's a business proposition with him. He long ago realized that Portsmouth real estate offered a splendid chance for investment—he knew that for the past twenty years and more Portsmouth real estate would grow more valuable with the coming and going of every year. He bought and built—the very thing you should do, if you are a tenant. This thing of sweating your life away and paying a large part of your money for the privilege of having a roof over your head, goes pretty hard when you stop to think about it, doesn't it? If you would but build a home of your own, you could pay for it in a few years, and once paid for, you cannot realize the feeling of pride and contentment that will be ours.

WHY NOT BUILD NOW?

Many people own lots—pretty locations for homes, but they are not building just now on account of the "alleged" high price of material. According to all the leading architects and men connected with the building material business, there is no chance on earth for a fall in price. Wages are high, and there is no indication they will come down—in fact, you, perhaps do not want them to fall, because you labor.

Then, again, possibly you have some spare money and are looking for an investment. We recommend the building of a house, or several houses for that matter. Any man who owns a lot can get assistance for the erection of a house. If you have the money with which to pay for a lot, go ahead and invest in the lot—then start building—not next year, but NOW.

Portsmouth Needs 1,000 New Houses!

If that many houses could spring up over night, they would all be taken before the sun went down—either purchased or leased. There is absolutely no risk to run—you are taking no chance on building—whether a home, or business rooms. The demand for houses is here—it will be even greater after a while, when the manufacturing plants enlarge and more laborers are needed.

The Future of Portsmouth Depends Upon Housing Conditions

The Peerless City is one of the most completely built towns in the country. It is at the same time one of the best towns of its size in the world, and is constantly getting better. BUT THE GROWTH OF THE CITY WILL BE IN THE SAME PROPORTION AS HER HOUSING CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVED. GIVE PORTSMOUTH ONE THOUSAND NEW HOUSES AND THE PEERLESS WILL BECOME A CITY OF 50,000 WITHIN THE SPACE OF ONE YEAR.

But After All—OWN YOUR OWN HOME!

WHEN A MAN OWNS HIS OWN HOME HE OWNS A BIG WAD OF SELF RESPECT. HE IS A REAL MEMBER OF HIS COMMUNITY. PEOPLE KNOW HE STANDS FOR SOMETHING.

BE A REAL CITIZEN—BUILD A HOME—THAT WILL MAKE YOU A REAL MAN AMONG MEN. COME TO US AND WE WILL BE ONLY TOO GLAD TO GIVE TO YOU ALL THE ASSISTANCE POSSIBLE—POSSIBLY WE CAN ENLIGHTEN YOU CONSIDERABLY. ONE THING SURE AND THAT IS YOU CAN NOT MAKE A BETTER MOVE—NOT ONLY FOR YOURSELF, BUT THE PRIDE, SELF-RESPECT AND CONTENTMENT OF YOUR FAMILY, EVERY MAN OWES HIS FAMILY A HOME—WHAT ABOUT YOU?

mineral-rich districts will be taken away and Poland will be able to do distant date to challenge Germany, as one of the great industrial states of Europe. Moreover, if a real Poland is thus created, with sure cutters on the sea, with satisfactory industrial machinery, nothing is more likely than that the East Prussian fragment will, in time, be submerged by the Polish waves from the great Slav hinterland.

Germany recognizes with a certain clarity that she has lost the war in the west, it may well be that she will never challenge France again, so far as Alsace-Lorraine is concerned, with the certainty that France will be backed there by Great Britain and not improbably by the United States, moreover the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, even the permanent loss of the Saar Basin is of relatively minor importance, but if a real Poland is constructed, protected during its early years endowed with Germany's Polish provinces, then Germany's hopes in the east are gone.

For Germany, then, the Polish question is vital. As it stands Polish armies in Posen are less than a hundred miles from Berlin. The barrier of the Lower Vistula is removed. If the Slavs should ever again stand together in Pan-Slavism should reawaken, when Russia comes to her own again, the road to the German capital would be open and short, without natural obstacle. Even if Russia remained in chaos, another European war in which Poland, as would be inevitable, stood with France and Great Britain, would bring instant and deadly peril to Germany.

In sum, and the point is capital, Germany cannot save herself, save after she is reduced to utter helplessness accept the eastern frontiers as drawn at Versailles. She cannot even permit them to be established temporarily, for the Balkan example has shown that people once liberated, maintain their freedom tenaciously and successfully. If Poland gets her new boundaries, her chance of keeping them is far greater than if the matter is delayed by German opposition until Allied armies are demobilized and Allied public have wearied and gone back to forgetfulness.

There is no need of pointing out that Poland cannot justify her not generosity. The Danzig convention is a very real disappointment of legitimate Polish aspirations. But to permit Poland to have justice means for Germany, for Prussia, the true master of Germany, to lose much of her power in Germany, much of her force in Europe.

By contrast, if Poland does not obtain justice, Germany will escape from the war with a real barrier in her way for a new adventure and the flimsy Polish state, which does not include German territories assigned to it at Versailles, will first be strangled industrially and commercially and presently re-united to Germany, restoring the old situation of evil and the ancient obstacle to world peace.

Events in Poland in the past weeks and months, therefore, must have a very important bearing upon the future of Europe and of world peace and no detail in the application of the conditions of peace can be more interesting than that which relates to the surrender by Germany of the territories she has promised to return to Poland.

 JURYMEN BY LAW
 COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—The manner prescribed by law for filling a jury wheel with names of prospective jurors is mandatory, the state supreme court ruled today in reversing the lower courts of Cuyahoga county in a damage suit brought by Frank Bressi, against the Cleveland Railway Company.

RATE HELD TOO HIGH BY COURT

COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—The Ohio Supreme court today set aside the 10 cent electric light rate used for Cleveland by the Ohio public utilities commission. The case now goes back to the commission for establishment of a lower rate.

In setting aside the ten cent rate, the court stated that it was unreasonable and directed the public utilities commission to review the case. A three cent rate was fixed by the city of Cleveland March 16, 1914. On April 14, 1914, the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company filed an appeal with the utilities commission on the ground that the three cent rate was inadequate and confiscatory. Then followed an appraisal of the properties of the illuminating company, by the utilities commission.

On the final valuation determined by the commission after several phases had been passed upon by the supreme court, the commission, November 9, 1918, fixed the rate at 10 cents per kilowatt hour and held it did not have jurisdiction to fix a schedule of rates, but would retain continuing jurisdiction over the case.

WHAT CHANCE HAS ONE WINTER AGAINST SIX "SOMMERS?" NONE, DECLARE WEST ENDERS

L. C. Peel, one of the bustling members of the West End Improvement Association, brought to the attention of the members at their meeting last night that the "temperature" of the organization leaned to the "hot weather side," inasmuch as there are six Sommers in the organization, one Spring and only one Winter. Peel's argument is that Winter

"does not cut any ice," with so many against one. The Sommers are Len, George, Adam, Bernard, Charles and Alvin. The Spring is W. H. Spring, and Winter is Fred Winter, head of the Association. It was brought to Mr. Peel's attention that a Fall was lacking, and he replied that if the subcommittee went down they would have a Fall.

Visit "Pig Clubs"

John W. Weicher of Columbus of the animal husbandry department, Department of Agriculture, arrived in the City today and met County Farm Agent Walter Gahm. Tuesday afternoon they visited the Lucasville Pig Club, the members meeting at the home of Rev. A. H. Beardsley. Wednesday morning he will meet with the Wheelersburg club at the home of John Oakes. Wednesday afternoon he will visit the Haverhill club, members at the home of Rev. Ray Stien. These are three pig club centers in the county. Twenty six boys in the three clubs have 31 pigs, and only one pig is not a thoroughbred.

Three prizes are to be awarded each club when the pigs are exhibited at the Lucasville Fair. Mr. Weicher is explaining to the boys how to get the best results with their stock.

Washing Enamel

All dirty marks on white enamel should be rubbed with a piece of flannel moistened with multistart spirit. Then wash the enamel with warm soapy water, dry and rub with a damp cloth sprinkled with whiting. Polishing with a dry duster completes the process. White enamel furniture treated in this way from time to time retains its brightness for a long period.

PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER "RIDES RANGE" WITH HUBBY AND DOUG

Left to right, Douglas Fairbanks, Mrs. William McAdoo and Mr. McAdoo. To see a daughter of a president of the United States and an ex-secretary of the U. S. treasury together with a "movie" millionaire roughing it through the wild cactus plains of the West is a rare sight. Mrs. McAdoo, the daughter of the president, has become quite an adept at "riding the range," but it comes much easier to her than to the usual tenderfoot because she comes from a family which was born and bred among Southern bluebirds. Her husband, the ex-secretary, also hails from the "Southland" and is no stranger at "saddle bustin'." As for the famous Douglas Fairbanks, little will have to be said of his ability as he is known every place that the movie picture is shown. "Doug" and "Mac" are good pals now through their business activities. Mr. McAdoo being counsel for the big motion picture star combing. The photo shows them ready for a ride through the sagebrush.

CONGRESS RECONVENES AFTER A SHORT RECESS

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The third part of the country session, which had been adjourned for a six-day recess, called in special session today for the first time in six months. The session was called by President Wilson seven weeks ago, to be given over to the consideration of the war. It was the first time since the war began that the Congress had met in special session. The session was called for the purpose of considering the war. The session was called for the purpose of considering the war. The session was called for the purpose of considering the war.

Considering Plan To Add Building Site

Plans looking toward extensive improvements in the city will be discussed at a citizens meeting of council and business men to be held at the council chamber Wednesday evening.

Initiated in the movement for new improvements is the opening up of the territory to the north of the eastern terminus of Seventeenth street, which embraces considerable land which, it is said, can be put on the market at a low price and with the object of placing building lots within the reach of the working class.

New Boston Council Wrangles Over "Base

New Boston Council Monday night could not come to an agreement on what to use for base on the seven streets to be paid, and consequently the contracts were not awarded to Kelley Bros. as was hoped for. At a recent meeting the members voiced their opinions in favor of gravel, as it was cheaper. Dr. T. H. McChann voted for gravel, last night when the ordinance was presented, four members, W. T. Harr, Pete Winter-sold, Dave Lewis and W. G. Chennay voted for gravel, while Dr. McChann held out for slag. It takes five votes to pass the ordinance and it had to be laid on the table. A meeting will be called tonight when the ordinance will be given its second reading. If not passed tonight a meeting will be called Wednesday night when the third reading will be given the legislation.

A resolution appropriating $900 sewer construction was blocked by member Dave Lewis voted "no," it takes five votes to pass the resolution so it will have to have another read and probably a third.

An ordinance was passed establishing a parking place for automobiles when the owners wish to enjoy a brook park.

No automobile is to be parked on Rhodes' avenue, between Park avenue and the first alley west of that place. The parking space designated the ordinance is on the south side Rhodes avenue, east of Park avenue. This space is back of the Caslow.

Splendid Way To Reduce Your Weight

There is perhaps no one thing that so plainly shows the training of our youth as the horrible tendency to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 20 or 25 years. However young your face may appear, the sagging, flabby figure and flabby flesh wait "gives us away."

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the excess fatty tissue. Fat people will be pleased to learn of a simple home method that is wonderfully efficient in reducing weight, quickly and easily without a starving diet, violent massage or strenuous exercise. Go to any drug store and get a box of Phylaxia, take five grains after each meal and at bed time. This treatment will often give quick relief from overburdening fat. Phylaxia taken at meal time cleanses the stomach, in giving you the benefit of the food you eat at the same time dissolves the fatty tissue from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. By this method many have reduced their weight a pound a day and there is no flabbiness, left. Phylaxia and Stretch Pharmacy, opposite post office, can supply you with the genuine Phylaxia at a small cost.

Splendid Way To Reduce Your Weight

There is perhaps no one thing that so plainly shows the training of our youth as the horrible tendency to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 20 or 25 years. However young your face may appear, the sagging, flabby figure and flabby flesh wait "gives us away."

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the excess fatty tissue. Fat people will be pleased to learn of a simple home method that is wonderfully efficient in reducing weight, quickly and easily without a starving diet, violent massage or strenuous exercise. Go to any drug store and get a box of Phylaxia, take five grains after each meal and at bed time. This treatment will often give quick relief from overburdening fat. Phylaxia taken at meal time cleanses the stomach, in giving you the benefit of the food you eat at the same time dissolves the fatty tissue from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. By this method many have reduced their weight a pound a day and there is no flabbiness, left. Phylaxia and Stretch Pharmacy, opposite post office, can supply you with the genuine Phylaxia at a small cost.

TWELVE DETECTIVE STORIES By ARTHUR STRINGER

VII.—The Bug in the Rug

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raimy Rymal, special agent and operative for the Jewelers' Protective Alliance, in New York, writes these stories for the information of Winkie, Mr. Winkie's friend, to prove to him that although appearances were often against her, she always loved him. Raimy was dismissed from a hospital, where she was training, because she let Angela Parento, a young Italian who had killed his sweetheart and wounded himself, escape. She later learns that he became a gang thief. As an object lesson for a group of gem thieves, Inspector Sloan, of the Alliance, gave Raimy the job of stealing the third biggest diamond in America. She was then to be arrested, tried and sent to jail—and immediately released. In the attempt at this sham robbery she chloroformed the owner of the diamond, who is later found dead, and the stone is gone from the safe when she goes to take it. The stone is later recovered from Curate Sam, a well-known pen thief. Then begins a battle of wits between the gem thieves and the representatives of law and order, and each one of these stories tells in a forceful manner the outcome of one of these interesting encounters. Toosey Atwill is a stool-pigeon for the Alliance.

SLOWLY Toosey Atwill moved along the street until she came to the little corner. Then she turned about, and just as decorously moved in the opposite direction. She seemed a subdued, a tamed and softened Toosey, and at the same time a very captivating Toosey. She made me think of peaches and cream, of peaches-and-cream effect may have come out of a box, but not one man in a hundred would have known it.

She was dressed in chambray gloves, and an English-looking blue cape, and a coy-looking nurse's bonnet with white strings. And to cap the climax, she was solemnly wheeling a French wicker baby-carriage adorned with a pink satin carriage-cloth. More observers than one, I noticed, became aware of Toosey's demure aspect. For as that melting-eyed stool-pigeon of the Alliance office moved slowly past the carriage entrance of the little, a time of waiting chauffeurs turned and viewed her with open admiration.

One of them, I could even see from the distance, went so far as to speak to her. But that blue-eyed pupil of French wicker-work went grimly on her way, with her lips set and her eyes lowered, looking neither to the right nor the left.

She kept on her way until she caught sight of me crossing the street. Thereupon she pushed her perambulator in before the window of an antique-shop and stooped solicitously over the end of the quilted picket robe, inspecting, to all intents and purposes, a purely imaginary infant beneath several swathings of pink veiling.

I myself at about the same moment stopped to admire a spindly-legged Heppelwhite table in the window of the antique-shop.

"What's wrong, Toosey?" I asked over my shoulder. For I knew by the black cloud of discontent on that customarily pretty young face that all was not well with this uniformed guardian of infancy.

"Oh, that nut gives me a pain in the neck!" she said with explosive and passionate disgust.

"What nut?" I promptly demanded.

"That wall-eye'd inspector who's makin' a monkey of me in open daylight," was Toosey's response.

"But you've got to watch that house," I reminded her, with a discreet look up and down the Avenue.

"Oh, I'm watchin' that house all right," she retorted as she adjusted the hood of her perambulator. "But what's the good o' puttin' me in this Kensington Garden get-up?"

"The people in that house," I patiently explained to her, "must never suspect that we are watching them."

"Then why didn't you send me down to the office get a hand-organ and put me on a chain? Why didn't he gimme a red cap and a tin cup and say right out that I was one o' the anthropoids?" For I'm 'scurvy' of this park-fountain governess business," complained Toosey. "Every-thing that happens along between the Avenue and the Grand Central seems to think this is the open season for cursemaids and tries to get busy gamin' for my life history. And if they happen to be the fifty-five full in the behind me, down to the office get a hand-organ and put me on a chain. Why, one old walkin' graveyard of about eighty who was so wheezy with the asthma you could hear him come like a fire-engine, tried to get me into a peach-colored sedan to go for-ridin' up to the Claremont. The only way I could shake 'im was to explain that the traffic cop on the next corner was my husband. And another old-timey tried to chuck me under the chin and call me Pinky-Winky. He explained that his health was failin' rapid and he wanted a practical-lookin' girl like me to kind o' look after him down to Palm Beach. He said my eyes told him I was conservative and kind-hearted. So I scussed round and let 'im read 'em again. And in case he wasn't settin' in straight I handed it to him also by word o' mouth. No South for me, grandpa, wit any quarter-ton o' follow that ain't had the yellow streak leavin' out of it yet! And I left him leavin' against the Biltmore network gurglin' for a doctor quick!"

I did my best not to smile. For Toosey's face was still serious.

"Say, Raimy, what is it about these pink-and-white perambulators that kind o' gives the old Winkies a flare-back o' wasted affection? For there's been a spavined old Brummel in a top-hat edgin' up to me for the last two days. He's been bawlin' round here by the hour at a time. He started in by askin' me if I was a nurse. I told him I was under that lapels and I had to keep him in a water-hydrant or he'd 'a' had my plant uncovered in the world. And I told him, Balm, this whole baby-nurse business is scurrin' me mad. It's warmin' me, it ain't leavin' me enough respect to slip into a United and buy makes me think of Brooklyn on a rainy Sunday. I tell you, Balm, if this go-go wagon-plant ain't took away from me inside another six hours I'm goin' to go off starin' mad and bite the corners off that grand new grocery o' Charles!"

"Sloan, of course, gave you his instructions?"

"It was said more as a reminder than as an interrogation," I explained, all right. But what I want is a little, seasonin' of explanation. Why doesn't he tell me why I'm watchin' that house? Why is he leavin' me to amble up and down here without even knowin' what I'm perambulin' for? Why is he so scared o' his operatives that he can't take 'em into his confidence for five minutes and show 'em what they're likely to run up against?"

"Sloan, of course, has his own way o' carryin' on his own business," I said with a quickness which was intended to carry his note of reproach.

"Well, he's goin' to carry me on to something more strenuous in this here baby-carriage, or you'll see me beatin' it away from your high-loned hotel section straight back to little old Chatham Square, where there's more doin' and less doin'!"

"Then what am I to report to Sloan when I see him?"

"Right away," Toosey gave her French wicker perambulator a vicious swing about into the channel of traffic.

"Then tell him for me that he's barkin' up the wrong tree. And I would add that the next old chaser who rumbles up and tries handlin' me the mash-line is goin' to get a pavin'-stone beat over his cocc!"

Inspector Sloan's estimate of the Holshaw house, I soon found differed radically from Toosey's. It was plain to see that he was puzzled by what I had told him. It was equally evident that he intended to keep his teeth shut on the bone of that mystery.

"Well, just let Toosey grouch along there for a day or two," he quietly announced. "But with you, Balm, I think I'll swing over to another plan."

It was easy enough to say. But to carry it out was a much more complicated matter than one might imagine.

This plan began with the trained nurse who, at five o'clock every afternoon, was supposed to go to the Forty-second Street subway station. And it began that same afternoon. For that afternoon, as this same nurse pushed her perambulator in toward the crowded kiosk, she collided violently and apparently by accident, with an unknown man.

"This man, the next moment, raised his voice in loud lamentation, and he then, after the nurse and caught her by the arm. He then announced to the assembling crowd that his pocket had been picked. The nurse naturally denied any interest in the event. But during their altercation a pocketbook fell to the ground and the man pounced on it with a cry of triumph. It was his, of course. She had tried, he protested, to get rid of it. This she denied.

The dispute was ended by the appearance of an officer in plain clothes who, after showing his shield, asked the man if he was ready to lay a charge. The man was most decidedly ready. So the indignant young Florence Nightingale was hailed to the nearest precinct station, was reexamined, and was searched by the matron who there awaited her. The raglan coat which she wore was taken from her. The Holshaw house passkey was also slipped quietly and unostentatiously off her ring.

Sloan, in the meantime, had me waiting in the next room, in a nurse's uniform, an exact duplicate of the prisoner's. He helped me into the raglan, saw that it fitted to a turn, and signed with relief.

"Now, Balm, here's the passkey to that house. The windows are wired, but the front door isn't. Get inside that door as quietly as you can, and find out as much as you can. We'll hold this woman till morning. We may be able to hold her longer, but we mustn't count on much more than one night. You're taking a chance, of course, but I know you're not a squealer. And remember that William will be waiting in a local house twenty yards from the Madison Avenue corner. If he hears or sees anything suspicious he'll be ready to break in with a couple of flatirons. But that, of course, is what we want to avoid. So have your look through and get away if you can, without any noise."

"And if I don't come out?" I mildly inquired. For I knew it was no ordinary house he was so nonchalantly asking me to invade.

"If you're not out by midnight, I'll be inside there myself," he said, frowning that heavy frown of his in a way that made him look like a museum bust of one of the Caesars. And nervous as I was beneath all my pose of indifference, I found something reassuring in remembering I had this man of power behind me, and that he, in turn, had the even more powerful machinery of the law behind him.

Twenty minutes later I emerged from the Grand Central subway station, walked north a few blocks along Madison, and then turned west. My heart was beating a little faster, in spite of myself, as I went up the wide brownstone steps of the Holshaw house. But it relieved me to see that the street in that neighborhood was almost empty. I found something fortifying, too, in the decorous appearance of that part of the city, in the left showed me a second stairway, leading to what must have been a basement. Rather than run the risk of being confronted by that unknown newcomer, I slipped through this partly opened door, closed it behind me, and ran lightly down the carpeted treads. I hesitated, for one brief moment, at the bottom of the stairway. But a quick glance about showed me no sign of life below stairs, so I hurriedly nosed into a darkened hallway for some twenty steps. This brought me to what was plainly a kitchen, an extremely disordered kitchen that held a littered range, a table piled high with used dishes, and the remains of a hurried meal. One burner of the range, I noticed, was alight.

When I came to a door at the foot of these stairs, toward the front of the house, I opened it without making a sound, and peered into a room lighted by one large electric-bulb. An opening had been cut in the wall opposite the doorway in which I stood, and through this ran a black rubber hose. There was a distant hissing which stopped suddenly for no apparent reason. There was no light beyond the break in the wall so what I led to I had no way of judging. But I stepped into the room and closed the door behind me.

I could see a coil of heavily insulated wire, a scattering of tools, and a second heavy hose wound with steel wire lying beside a handleless pickaxe. Over everything in the room was a powdering of dust. On advancing into the room I discovered across the opening in the wall a metal mat about two feet by three in size. The position of that mat struck me as interesting. So I dropped on one knee and stooped over it. Then I lifted one corner of it ever so little to see whether or not it was wired. I found out all right, for immediately I heard the muffled tinkle of a bell somewhere deep beyond the wall opening.

"Get out of that mat!" cried an angry voice out of the blackness in front of me. Then my blood ran cold as I heard the sound of heavy breathing.

I hadn't traveled many blocks before, on the corner side of the Avenue, I beheld Toosey Atwill and her baby carriage, already out for their maternal airing. Besides her, and just a step or two in the rear, I noticed that she was being followed by a carefully tailored but somewhat doddery old Beau Brummel of at least sixty summers. I had to throw her the high-sign for the second time before she recognized me under my make-up. Then she promptly crossed the street and pushed her way leisurely to where I stood waiting for her behind the plate-glass window of one of those fifty-five jewelry shops which look as though they'd been modeled in the Place Vendôme.

"Look what's still trying to freeze onto me!" announced Toosey, sotto voce, as she paused in front of the shop window and indulged in the familiar exercise of jiggling the arrested perambulator. "He wants to buy me the Biltmore this morning!"

"Is that old idiot interfering with your work?" I demanded of Toosey, after telling her what I had to tell her, without once glancing directly at her.

"No, he's not interfering with my smoothin' and he ain't botherin' me. He's drivin' me nuts, for every now and then I kind o' feel that I'm bugs, and he's bugs, and the whole world is turnin' bugs!"

I stood staring in through the plate-glass before me, and for the first time my inspection became something more than a pretense. I awakened to the fact that this little limitation Place Vendôme jewelry was a very finished product. Behind the plate glass was a window cabinet which I could recognize as being steel, though it was colored and grained and varnished to look like Cretan walnut. That window cabinet, I remembered, was as strong as a safe. But what caught my eye as I actually looked into it was its contents. It held only one thing on display: This was a string of black pearls, nestling on a pale-tone pruner of the finest silk imitation. Place Vendôme, I knew, gave them a vastly added value, even though each stone, by itself, might once have cost as much from a decent motor-car. Toosey, I saw, was quite as impressed by the string as myself. I could even detect a slight frown come into her face as she studied them.

"My Lord!" she gasped with widening eyes.

"What is it?" I demanded.

"I guess the bugs are hittin' the coffin-nails a little too hard," was her not altogether unsatisfactory response.

"Why do you say that?"

"Too many cignets is makin' me see things."

"See things?" I echoed.

She shrugged her shoulder, almost defiantly. Then her smile died suddenly from her face and she just as suddenly caught me by the arm.

"My Lord, Raimy! Them pearls are all right!"

"You imagined it," I told the girl, smiling.

"It's a bug all right," she dolorously acknowledged. "And it's mine!"

Then it was my turn to gasp a little. For distinctly, as I stared at those lustrous spheres of blackness on their slender wire of platinum, one end of the string lifted and moved a little.

"My eyes, I appear, were about the size of acorns."

LOCAL BOY PREFERS GOING TO SIBERIA TO GOING TO JAIL

"Would you rather go to jail for 30 days or Siberia?" This was the predicament that faced a young Portsmouth soldier, Clyde Smith, recently, while stationed at Fort Thomas, Ky., according to word received by relatives.

The tale begins when Smith, an unsophisticated Yank, in the Motor Transport Company, at the Fort, was sent to Newport, in an army truck for supplies. While there he met an old friend from his home town, and according to the etiquette of the post prohibition days, was given several drinks that possessed a decided "kick".

After leaving his collection friend, Clyde went to the theater, leaving the truck in front of the building. Upon coming out, he got slightly mixed, and climbed in a truck belonging to John Barnett, of Indianapolis. Instead of the U. S. army machine.

He did not discover his mistake until he had reached the Fort. Driving hastily back to correct the error, he was arrested and taken before Judge Moore of Newport. While being arraigned before the magistrate, the following conversation took place:

"Your Honor, I'm under orders to go to Siberia, and if you send me to jail I'll be A. W. O. L.," said Smith.

"Would you rather go to Siberia than spend 30 days in our jail?" inquired the judge.

"I'll say I would," shot back the Yank.

"All right, you may go, and be a good boy in the future," said Judge Moore.

"Thanks," replied Smith, as he beat it posthaste for the door.

According to word received by relatives, Smith is now at Camp Meade, Md., awaiting orders to sail.

Wednesday, July 9—St. Paul vs. St. John
Thursday, July 10—Drew vs. St. Mary
Friday, July 11—N. & W. vs. St. John
Saturday, July 12—St. Paul vs. Excel.

In a wild and long drawn out contest at the Friday street pasture Monday evening the N. & W. ball players considerably bested the cellar champions and showed them still further down into the dungeon, getting the decision over the Drew outfit by the score of 6 to 3.

Manager Jack Harting trotted out a new pitcher, Mr. Cottrell, by name, and his offerings were severely punished at times by the enemy, who garnered 5 safe hits, including 5 two baggers enabling them to score enough in three innings to win hands down.

Cottrell is about the slowest mortal this side of the sun and family and as a result of his belated movements in the box while trying to pitch the fans "rode" him unmercifully and the little stars were shining in the heavens when the frames were ended.

The Drew aggregation put up far the best showing on the green but their attack was mostly weak and fell away to nothing after getting two safe blows off Weaver in the third, pinching them off after the crack outplay had spinned the wrist of his pitching arm and forcing him to retire in favor of Jim Wilcox, who twirled the last four rounds in style, he holding the opposing batters without a hit during the time he was on the slab, although they scored a run in the last inning on a misplay.

"Pop" Geers Has New Circuit Racer

DETROIT, July 7.—"Pop" Geers, dean of reinmen and best loved of all connected with the harness racing sport by the racing public, has a new trotter in his stable which he is counting upon to be a big factor in the stakes for 2:30 and 2:10 trotters this season. This is the Ohio mare Golden Spleen (2:30 3/4), an important factor on the Ohio half-mile tracks for a couple of seasons and one which got a taste of Grand Circuit society last Fall, quitting the two lap tracks for an excursion to the big ring meeting at Columbus, where she won one of those "1512 system" endurance contests, proving herself, while possibly not the fastest, the best stayer of the bunch.

"Pop" took a special interest in Golden Spleen, for she is a full sister of the chestnut mare which upset the Geers plans on more than one important occasion during the season of 1918.

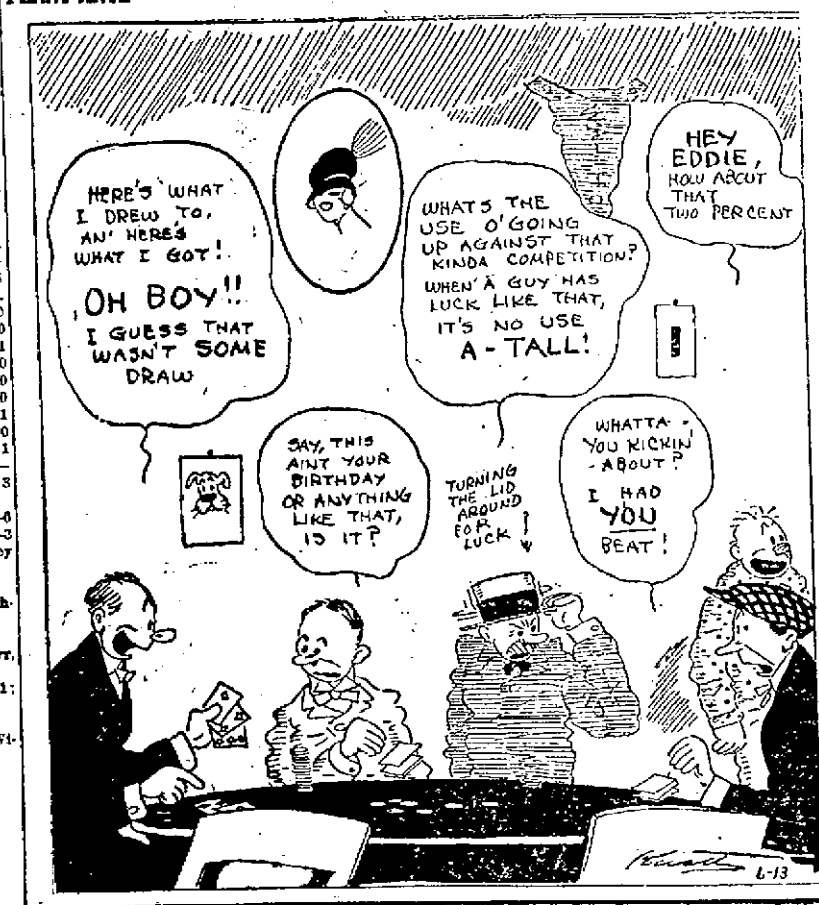

After one was down in the third, Harriette clipped a single to left and went in second when Wells fumbled a roller. Thompson then posted a hit through second and the Drew manager scampered home and Lewis to third. The latter was nipped at the plate on Grimm's tap to first base.

The railroad boys did not score until the third when they tied up the score although Vaughters let off with a roaring double in the second, but was doubled off the bag when Sturgill jumped to Stuyler.

Stuyler led off with a hit in the third and Cooper was safe on Cottrell's wild throw to first and both runners came home when Weaver clipped a two-bagger to right. Vaughters again started things in the fourth with a double and Wells followed with a single and both scored when Mantel peddled off a two cushion stut over second.

Two more were added in the fifth when Thimmes walked after one was down and Keyser singled putting two on. Wells drove the herd home with

Dethroned Champion Was Sent To The Canvas Seven Times By Jack Dempsey

TOLEDO, O., July 6.—All doubt concerning the number of knock downs Dempsey scored in the first round during his heavy-weight championship contest with Jess Willard, July 4, was removed today when motion pictures, exhibited privately to Promoter Tex Rickard and a party of friends, revealed that the dethroned champion was sent to the canvas seven times.

There were no knock-downs in the remaining two rounds, but Willard probably would have been felled if the ropes of the ring had not supported him.

Dempsey, the pictures revealed, felled Willard with left hooks to the chin for the first four knock-downs. He upset the dethroned champion for the other three knock-downs with right and left swings. The first blow that upset Willard was a short right swing to the heart followed by a left hook to the chin.

Clerks are finishing the task of checking up the gate receipts and attendance of the match and Rickard hopes to be able to issue an official statement today.

CONFESIONAIRES LAST
It developed today that concessionaires, who expected to reap a rich harvest from the crowd at the fourth of July contest, lost heavily. Ad Q. Thacher, match-maker of the Toledo boxing commission, who converted an abandoned five story building into a sleeping dormitory, dropped $1,000 in the venture. The night of July 3 there were only nineteen persons registered. Twelve of this number succeeded in securing the seats who were supposed to collect $5 from each viewer.

One concessionaire, who invested $300 in peanuts, sold $10 worth. The temerarious concessionaire lost heavily because the soldier ushers would not permit vendors to circulate among the crowd. And without vendors the crowd refused to eat peanuts.

Enterprising Toledoans who chartered a large and two tug boats for $400 to carry persons from downtown crowds to the arena, succeeded in getting forty nine persons to make the trip at $1 each.

Record For Shawkey
In annexing his ninth straight victory Shawkey has equaled the American League record for the past four years. In 1916 Nick Cullip of the Yankees, Dave Davidson of the Browns, and George Foster of the Red Sox, scored nine straight victories. Walter Johnson equaled the feat the following year.

Barry Asks For Release
BOSTON, July 7.—Jack Barry announced tonight that he would seek an unconditional release from the Boston League Club, who recently traded him to the Philadelphia club. Barry had a conference today with Connie Mack at which it was decided that he would not join the Athletics if Barry obtains his release he may sign with some other big league club.

A Freak Draw

Under the Hunk.

The toughest nut any man ever tried to crack is a selfish heart. It takes a giant hammer, swung by superhuman power to do that. But once the shell is broken, the sweetest meat ever tasted drops out.

Cicotte Has Fans Guessing

Eddie Cicotte has the wise boys guessing. He is an exception to the rule, as major league pitchers go, for he improves with age.

On June 10 Cicotte celebrated his thirty-sixth birthday. He is four years older than Walter Johnson, according to the record books, and has three summers on Groves Cleveland. Under the present season show Cicotte as the biggest winner in either league.

Since he joined the Red Sox, break into the big show in 1908, Cicotte's record shows that during the period up to 1917 he was inclined to be an inside-outter. He alternated above and below the 500 mark and his best season up to 1917 was that of 1913, when he won 28 games for Chicago and lost 12.

Cicotte's pitching in 1917, when his work was largely responsible for the winning of the American League pennant by the Clan Conkey, was a source of wonder to the critics. He was undoubtedly the best pitcher in either major league that season. In the world's series with the Giants he big share of the glory passed to Walter Johnson, but Cicotte's performances during the season could not be belittled.

In 1918 Eddie worked in a total of 39 games for Chicago, but he lost sixteen and won but twelve.

This year Cicotte is back again dealing a lion's share of the glory among the major pitchers and going up to 1917 he was inclined to be an inside-outter. He alternated above and below the 500 mark and his best season up to 1917 was that of 1913, when he won 28 games for Chicago and lost 12.

CONGRESS RECONVENES AFTER A SHORT RECESS

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The sixty-sixth congress, called in special session by President Wilson seven weeks ago, began a new chapter when it convened today after a week's recess. Having passed all of the appropriation bills carrying funds needed for the fiscal year, leaders planned to begin work at an early date on the reconstruction legislation made necessary by the change of the country from war to peace basis, while in the senate the next few months at least, are expected to be given over largely to consideration of the German peace treaty and related subjects.

The appearance before the senate Thursday of President Wilson to explain the peace treaty and its long-range effect on the nation's economy and the French-American agreement in the opinion of senators, eclipsed all other matters on the senate program for the week. No important business was on the senate calendar to be taken up immediately, and it was considered probable that some members that the senate might adjourn until Thursday noon after meeting today.

In the house, activity this week will center on committee work, with the exception that legislation for a foreign prohibition policy will be introduced for consideration on the floor. Investigation of war department expenditures will be continued during the week by subcommittees, while work on some phases of merchant marine legislation will be undertaken by subcommittees of the committee on commerce. The interstate commerce committee plans to complete its program for teaching the railroad legislation that are being introduced today. The ways and means committee is expected to consider special legislation for protection of industries which sprang up during the war before beginning work on a general revision of the tariff.

Tentative plans of house leaders called for the prohibition enforcement legislation to be given the right of way in the house, beginning today, but its supporters were uncertain whether these plans would be carried out.

Allies Approve Plan For Attack On Petrograd

PARIS, Monday, July 7.—Approval of a plan for a concerted attack upon Russia was given today by the council of the Allies.

MINORITY ASKS FOR REPEAL OF WAR-TIME PROHIBITION LAW

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Five members of the house judiciary committee in a minority report on the prohibition enforcement bill made public last night, declared congress should repeal the war-time prohibition act or at least lift the ban so far as it relates to the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

While this report was being prepared, Chairman Volstead of the judiciary committee, announced that he had asked for a rule to make the general enforcement bill in order for immediate consideration with a view to rolling it up tomorrow in the house.

Mr. Volstead said that so far as he was aware there was no intention of repealing the measure so as to put before the house a straight bill for enforcement of the war-time law.

Three Grounds Named

The minority report signed by Representatives Lee, Missouri; Steele, Pennsylvania; Bard, Ohio, Democrats, and Dyer, Missouri; Closson, Wisconsin, Republican, based its objections to the enforcement bill reported out by the committee upon three principal grounds, and challenged the power of congress to pass it because in defining intoxicating liquors it went beyond the original act and was therefore new legislation.

On the general question of the war-time act and its enforcement the minority report held:

"That the provisions for the enforcement of war-time prohibition carry a declaration of intoxicating liquors which extends the prohibition beyond that of the original act and to that extent is new legislation which congress has not the right now to pass under the war power. We believe the original act should be repealed."

Saturday, July 12—Steel Plant vs. Excelsior.

In a wild and long drawn out combat at the Friday street pasture Monday evening the N. & W. ball team considerably bested the cellar champions and shoved them still farther down into the dungeon, getting the decision over the Drew outfit by the score of 6 to 3.

Manager Jack Hartlage trotted out a new pitcher, Mr. Cottrell, by name, and his offerings were severely panned at times by the enemy, who secured 5 safe outs, including 5 two-baggers enabling them to score enough in three innings to win hands down.

Cottrell is about the slowest mortal this side of the small family and as a result of his belated movements in the box while endeavoring to pitch the fans "yode" him unmercifully and the little stars were shining in the heavens when the fracas was ended.

The Drew aggregation put up far the best showing on the green but their attack was woefully weak and fell away to nothing after getting two safe blows off Weaver in the third, pinching three off after the crack southpaw had sprained the wrist of his pitching arm and forcing him to retire in favor of Jim Wilcox, who twirled the last four rounds in style, he holding the opposing batters without a hit during the time he was on the slab, although they scored a run in the last inning on a misplay.

Manager Dawson's boys while amassing a total of 8 misplays made up for their wobbles by their terrific work with the club, Vaughters leading the assault on Pitcher Cottrell with a pair of long boys sending the first to right field in the third and to show that this hit was no fluke he slammed one for a field which carried far over Jack Hartlage's head in left. Both were good clean smacks good for two bases each. Wells and Mantel also scored two safe blows each, while Weaver poked out a two-bagger his only time up which brought over the first pair of markers in the third.

The Drews scored one in the second without a hit. Thompson, who got on the paths when Wells finished his roller worked his way to the third station on a couple of outs and then made a clean steal of home, sliding over the plate and getting the decision in a close play.

After one was down in the third, Hartlage clipped a single to left and went to second when Wells fumbled Lewis roller. Thompson then poked a hit through second and the Drew manager scampered home and Lewis to third. The latter was nipped at the plate on Grimm's tap to first base.

The railroad boys did not score until the third when they tied up the score although Vaughters led off with a roaring double in the second but was doubled off the bag when Stargill popped to Shnyder.

Mantel led off with a hit in the third and Cooper was safe on Cottrell's wild throw to first and both runners came home when Weaver clipped a two-bagger to right. Vaughters again started things in the fourth with a double and Wells followed with a single and both scored when Mantel peeled off a two cushion swing over second.

Two more were added in the fifth when Timmes walked after one was down and Keyser singled putting two on. Wells drove the herd home with

"Pop" Geers Has New Circuit Racer

DETROIT, July 7—"Pop" Geers, dean of reinmen and best lured of all connected with the harness racing sport by the racing public, has a new trotter in his stable which he is counting upon to be a big factor in the stakes for 2:00 and 2:10 trotters this season. This is the Ohio mare Golden Spler (2:07 3/4), an important factor on the Ohio half-mile tracks for a couple of seasons and one which got a taste of Grand Circuit society last Fall, quitting the two-day tracks for an excursion to the big ring meeting at Columbus, where she, like one of those "1912 system" endurance contests, proving herself, while possibly not the fastest, the best stayer of the bunch.

"Pop" took a special interest in Golden Spler, for she is a full sister of the greatest mare which upset the Geers plans on more than one important occasion during the season of 1910.

Receives Big Fight Offer

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 7.—Fight promoters connected with a local sporting club today wired Jack Dempsey, the new heavyweight champion, guaranteeing him $30,000 for an eight round bout here on Labor Day with Willie Meahan. The latter has consented to meet Dempsey.

DEMPSEY HAS SELECTED HOME

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 7.—Jack Dempsey, the new heavyweight champion, will make his home here, where he did considerable training for his bout with Willard. He is a member of the Lake Lodge of this place.

PENNY ANTE

Dethroned Champion Was Sent To The Canvas Seven Times By Jack Dempsey

TOLEDO, O., July 8.—All doubt concerning the number of knock downs Dempsey scored in the first round during his heavy-weight championship fight with Jess Willard, July 4, was removed today when motion pictures, exhibited privately to Promoter Tex Rickard and a party of friends, revealed that the dethroned champion was sent to the canvas seven times.

There were no knock-downs in the remaining two rounds, but Willard probably would have been felled if the ropes of the ring had not supported him.

Dempsey, the pictures revealed, felled Willard with left hooks to the chin for the first four knock-downs. He sent the defeated champion for the other three knock-downs with right and left swings. The first blow that upset Willard was a short right swing to the head followed by a left hook to the chin.

Checks are fulfilling the task of checking up the gate receipts and attendance of the match and Rickard hopes to be able to issue an official statement today.

CONCESSIONAIRES LOST.—It developed today that concessionaires, who expected to reap a rich harvest from the crowd at the fourth of July contest, lost heavily. Ad O. Thacher, north-maker of the Toledo boxing commission, who converted an abandoned fire story building into a sleeping dormitory, dropped $1,000 on the venture. The night of July 3 there were only ninety persons registered. Twelve of this number succeeded in avoiding the place who were supposed to collect $5 from each sleeper.

One concessionaire, who invested $200 in peanuts, sold $20 worth. The lemonade concessionaire lost heavily because the soldier ushers would not permit vendors to circulate among the crowd. And without lemonade the crowd refused to eat peanuts.

Enterprising Toledoans who chartered a large and two big boats for $100 to carry persons from downtown crowds to the arena, succeeded in getting forty nine persons to make the trip at $1 each.

Record For Shawkey

In analyzing his ninth straight victory Shawkey has equaled the American League record for the past four years. In 1916 Nick Cullip of the Yankees, Dave Davenport of the Browns, and George Foster of the Red Sox, scored nine straight victories. Walter Johnson equaled the feat the following year.

Barry Asks For Release

BOSTON, July 7.—Jack Barry announced tonight that he would seek an unconditional release from H. H. Frazee, President of the Boston American League Club, who recently traded him to the Philadelphia club. Barry had a conference today with Connie Mack at which it was decided that he would not join the Athletics. If Barry obtains his release he may sign with some other big league club.

Girls Slide 35 Feet Down A Blanket Rope And Escape Jail

The two girls, Edith Barnhart and Carry Owens, who were arrested at Ironton, Sunday, for parading in soldier's clothes, together with a girl named Mary Dougherty, made a sensational escape from the Lawrence county jail shortly after midnight Monday, but were apprehended a few hours later.

The young women, had they lived in the days of Jesse James, could not have been more daring, for after donning soldier's "unies" and being taken into the clutches of the law, they effected their escape from prison by sliding down from the jail roof, a distance of 35 feet, on a ladder made of their jail blankets. The girls made their way to liberty by prying a plank off the trap door leading to the skyline, and once through the trap-door they easily gained access to the outside through the skylight. Quickly sliding down the blanket ladder, the trio made a dash to escape.

The blankets hanging down over the jail porch gave the first view to the jail delivery, the night watchman making the discovery shortly after one o'clock and notified the jailer.

The officers started in pursuit of the escaped young women, but did not succeed in locating them until daybreak this morning, when they were found hiding in some high weeds near the Kelly mill mill on the river bank. They were taken back to jail and will be given a hearing before Judge Roberts on charges of delinquency.

LOCAL BOY PREFERS GOING TO SIBERIA TO GOING TO JAIL

"Would you rather go to jail for 30 days or Siberia?" This was the predicament that faced a young Portsmouth soldier, Clyde Smith, recently, while stationed at Fort Thomas, Ky., according to word received by relatives.

The tale begins when Smith, an un-sophisticated Yank, in the Motor Transport Company, at the Fort, was sent to Newport, in an army truck for supplies. While there he met an old friend from his home town, and according to the etiquette of the post-prohibition class, was given several drinks that possessed a decided "kick."

After leaving his relatives, Smith said he went to the theater, leaving them in front of the building. "I don't know how long I was in the jail," he said, "but I was there for 30 days in our jail." He said he was in a truck belonging to John Harman, of Indianapolis, instead of the U. S. army machine.

He did not discover his mistake until he had reached the Fort. "I was in a truck for 30 days in our jail," he said, "but I was there for 30 days in our jail." He said he was in a truck belonging to John Harman, of Indianapolis, instead of the U. S. army machine.
